

WESTERLY

Twelve indictments were returned by the grand jury of the superior court in session at Kingston Wednesday afternoon, five of which were secret.

There were five indictments in which James J. Villarey, Philip Polofsky and Albert Levine of Providence were the principals, charged with numerous breaks of summer cottages at Narragansett Pier on Jan. 12 with larceny, therefore, one joint indictment against John Magliorelli, Angelo Montalto, John Alessio, Angelo Cofone and Pasquale Serra of Westerly for breaking and entering the shop of Antonio Pupillo in the night time and the larceny of a quantity of cigarettes and candy, and an indictment against Emma J. Payne for maintaining a nuisance, to wit, a grog shop and house of ill fame. In this case the respondent when arraigned pleaded not guilty and was released on personal recognizance in the sum of $500, costs in the case to be paid by April 15. The respondent was ordered to leave the state within one week and remain out of the state permanently.

The respondent was arrested by the Westerly police at her home, 49 Pierce street, on Jan. 14, where the officials found the Payne woman and five colored men and a white girl 16 years of age. The police had been called to stop a disturbance, it was said, and from all appearances the inmates had been drinking.

Villarey and Polofsky were arraigned and entered pleas of not guilty. Bail was fixed at $3000 in each indictment. The former secured bail through Nicandro Sabatino, but the latter was committed to the Westerly county jail in default of bail.

Levine will be arraigned today, as will the Westerly defendants in the joint indictment.

In the action of Edward A. Tyler vs. Amos Harrington of trespass on the case for alienation of the affections of Florence Tyler, the case was defaulted. Damages in the declaration were set at $5,000. John J. Dunn represented the plaintiff.

A number of divorces were heard and disposed of as follows:

Louis Rasmussen vs. Ida B. Rasmussen. Decision for petitioner, on ground of wilful desertion.

Natalie Tavernese vs. Rosina Di Bartolo Tavernese. Decision for petitioner on ground of extreme cruelty. Roche for petitioner.

Louise E. Bergin of North Kingstown vs. James A. Bergin. Decision for petitioner on ground of wilful desertion.

Irene V. Mason of Westerly vs. Harold W. Mason. Grant of grounds of neglect to provide and petitioner allowed to resume her maiden name, Irene V. Smith.

George M. Pendleton of Westerly, vs. Annie H. Pendleton. Decision for the petitioner on ground of wilful desertion. Roche for petitioner.

Ludora Maynard of Westerly vs. Nora E. Maynard. Decision for petitioner on ground of gross misbehavior. Roche for petitioner.

His body has remained in France for over two years, but at the request of his relatives here, it was recently forwarded to this country, and arrived in Westerly Saturday last. The Legion members have been requested to meet at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon so that they may escort the body to its final resting place.

"The patrons shrieked and roared. They had witnessed the most sensational photoplay climax that ever aroused a cataract of emotions. Enough to raise the hair on a man's head and raise the man out of his seat."—SUN-HERALD.

"One cannot enumerate the multitude of virtues in the film. One should really see the picture. It is unique and a great thing."—AMERICAN.

"Big thrills and river ice crash. The most thrilling scene ever shown on the screen. The suspense is overwhelming, partly because the onlookers realize that there is no fake about it. Mr. Griffith produces pictures of startling beauty that suggest famous landscapes painted by masters."—EVENING TELEGRAM.

"Mr. Griffith, with unerring instinct, has played up the appeal to the elemental emotions. His picture is full of exquisitely beautiful scenes, needing no color to reveal their perfection."—EVENING POST.

"It is not often that an audience stands to cheer a motion picture. But it happened at the Fort fourth Street Theatre. The audience rose and cheered. Some of the settings are wondrously beautiful, the scenes in the snowstorms being most realistic."—COMMERCIAL.

"The audience sat in rapture to watch its unfolding. Of the hubbub which followed the ice jam scene at the end, any audience would have cheered it—and all audiences will."—TIMES.

"It had the spectators standing and cheering. As many generations of the future will be charmed and thrilled by the shadow show as have wept, applauded and chuckled over the stage play. It is difficult to recall anything Griffith ever did which has more punch than this long sustained, breath-taking scene on the ice."—WORLD.

"Most amazing spectacle ever seen on land or sea or moving picture screen. Brought the audience to its feet in spontaneous shout of appreciation. . . . Much rural comedy. . . . Will be cheered from coast to coast and in many different tongues and accents across the water."—ALISON SMITH, GLOBE.

"The audience received a thrill the like of which has not been felt since the Clansman rode over the hills in 'The Birth of a Nation'. To describe the acting of Lillian Gish would be to open these columns to all the superlatives in the language. . . . Pandemonium broke loose. . . . The theatre resounded to cheers, whistles and yells of delight. A series of pictures that might well hang on any wall."—EVENING MAIL.

"D. W. Griffith has climbed to new heights of achievement in 'Way Down East.' Audience cheered the sensational scenes. . . . No one overacted and every one in the carefully selected company is true to type."—EVENING SUN.

"Millions will flock to it; will be thrilled and will cheer."—S. JAY KAUFMAN, GLOBE.

"When the stupendous ice scenes were shown the theatre rocked with applause. Never in our five years' experience with motion pictures have we seen such a demonstration. It is difficult to write without dealing almost entirely in superlatives."—HARRIETTE UNDERHILL, TRIBUNE.

"No one but Griffith could have done it. . . . Audience broke into cheers and screams. . . . But to the story itself, the fundamental humanity with which it deals, the simplicity of characters, is due the absorption of the people who, with caught breath, watched the tale unfold."—BOYLE ILLUS, TRATED NEWS.
